Medical Education & Research Institute of Nevada (MERIN) Installs New Communication Technologies

Henderson, NV, March 15, 2010 – Platinum Training Based on customer feedback MERIN, a Platinum Training Company, has updated their audiovisual technology in their 95-seat tiered lecture hall.

“We’ve installed high definition 60 inch “confidence” monitors in our auditorium to allow presenters to see their presentation while facing the audience (instead of turning around to view the auditorium projection screen), according to Martin Dean, Platinum Training Director of Business Development.

Confidence monitors permit the audience to feel more engaged with the speaker, as the speaker always faces them.

“The signals to the two monitors can be split, permitting the presenter’s presentation to appear on one display while video of the live speaker appears on the other,” Dean continued. “This feedback is critical for the presenter when live surgeries are taking place and delivered to the MERIN auditorium via satellite.”

MERIN will also be installing a revolutionary new 3D High Definition projector to take advantage of emerging 3D video technologies. The new projector is 10x brighter than existing displays and supports high definition broadcasts.

MERIN is one of the only vertically integrated labs in the US with internal sources for tissue, meeting services for customers, and an “outcomes” focus for courses held at the facility.
